Genesis Of Our Name

Electrum – A Symbol of Wealth and Excellence

What is Electrum ?

- It is a naturally occurring alloy of gold which was historically used to make coins, jewellery and ornaments.
- It was a preferred alloy as it is harder and more durable than pure gold.

Historical Significance

- The earliest known coins in the western world were minted out of electrum, first used in coins around 600 BC in Lydia during the reign of Alyattes.
- It remained popular for coinage until about 350 BC.

Where is it found ?

- In ancient times, the chief source of electrum was Lydia, around the Pactolus River, a tributary of the Hermus, now called the Gediz Nehriin in Turkey.
- Unless you visit a museum or win a Nobel Prize, your best chance of finding electrum is to seek it as a natural alloy.

We have christened our Company on the ancient metal as a symbol of "Wealth" and "Excellence".
